C Major (Orig. published key) -2 Bb Major (2 apartments) FREDDIE FREELOADER HARMONIZED: This is the second track from the 1959 Miles Davis kind of blue album. Here's a sheet: The melody is played in a three-part harmony: a trumpet on top, an alto saxophone in the middle, and a tenor saxophone at the bottom. Here are the chord charts for guitar transcription: (circular notes are optional bass notes that can be added when playing a solo guitar) Click here for an explanation for the reading of the Chord Study Chart. I remember in my early education days when attending my local music conservatory and when I studied jazz and contemporary music. I played a lot of jazz standards in our small band, but never did we ever play Freddie Freeloader. Freddie Fritsner was originally written by Miles Davis and was recorded to be part of the 1959 Kind of Blue recording. When you listen to the music of Miles Davis in general - and Freddie Freeloader is no exception - much of his Kind of Blue music is trendy rather than tonal. His head and theme feels more fashionable, while the solo section focuses on the traditional blues progression. This means that its theme and music has a nat there is a tonic center, such as, say, Donna Lee or Stella Starlight. Related: Night in Tunisia - Dizzy Gillespieff you really like Freddie Freeloader lead sheet that shared, we would kindly ask you to share this chart with your male and female music colleagues, so that we can spread the word about what it is we do here in And it acts as a public domain file-sharing service and a center of knowledge. Don't forget - and we say this in the ever lead sheet that we upload and share - we have a comment and ranking section below that if visitors and the user would write something and rate our site and the notes we downloaded would help us a huge amount. Also, before we round up, if for some reason you don't find any particular chart, lead sheet, PDF or anything else, feel free to also contact us through this comments section below.
